

KEEPING THE FINANCIAL INDUSTRY CONNECTED

NITEL CONNECTS BRANCH LOCATIONS

To meet the needs of their customers who demand both convenience and a face-to-face relationship, financial institutions are making substantial investments in establishing branches. Whether a brick and mortar project or a kiosk in a supermarket, branching is the way to provide service where and when customers want it. In an increasingly competitive market place, well placed and efficient branches provide the differentiation needed to develop and retain satisfied customers. Branches can lead directly to revenue and income growth as long as the associated costs are controlled and managed.

Critical to operating branches is access to the same technology and systems available at centralized locations. There must be timely access to operational information, simplified interfaces to news, collaboration, and productivity tools and applications, and up-to-date customer records. At the same time, all information must remain confidential.

Nitel understands financial services industry information technology challenges and offers a simple to order and use private line solution that provides secure and cost-effective connectivity for all branch locations. Branch connectivity solutions from nitel remove the need to interface with multiple local telephone companies because our client support team and help desk manage these interactions for our customers without concern for telco boundaries.

Private line solutions are just that, private. They are a secure, dedicated link between two locations. They are not a shared network, but rather a constant and reliable transmission path sized to meet the specific information requirements of the branch. In addition to security, private line solutions from nitel bring:

- Guaranteed throughput
- No limitations due to network congestion
- Constant and predictable latency
- High quality networks from tier 1 carriers
- No restrictions based on time of day or day of the week
- A predictable price without usage based variations

When implementing a private line solution from Nitel, financial services companies can be assured of competitive pricing, a quality connection, and the service and attention to detail that comes from dealing with Nitel.
